What in the World is the World Doing to End Plastic Pollution?
A Multi-stakeholder Approach to Tackling Marine Debris

Bio: A proud California native with a passion for the environment, Keondra comes most recently from the U.S. State Department, where she was part of the team in the Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs’ Office of Economic Policy, dealing with environmental issues in the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) forum. She has been a Sustainable Development Fellow with the Millennium Villages Project in Kenya, and a Peace Corps volunteer in Fiji, where she focused on community-centered solutions to environmental issues and economic development.